Introduction: The Military Museum of Southern New England (MMSNE) permanently closed in 09/2017, a small part of the collection was moved to the Museum of American Armor (MOAA) in Plainview NY. Most of the collection is still property of the Dept of Defense (DoD, including U.S. Army, U.S. Army National Guard, and U.S. Marine Corps). This document illustrates the eventual location of DoD owned and non-DoD owned vehicles and weaponry, however it is not all encompassing of every vehicle, weapon, and item that was at the museum during its 30 year history. The last known locations may not be up to date. All information shown is open sourced.

I am looking to offload a M103 heavy tank chassis. No turret and no engine, I am looking for reasonable offers, if I don't get any offers it will see the torch. 1944 BUICK M39 ARMOURD UTILITY VEHICLE

Troop Carrier prime mover version of the M18 Hellcat. Sharing identical running gear and mechanics as the M18 but with the turret removed and provision for 7 troops installed. Very few now remain in existence. This is the only one in the UK.

640 of these variants were made using existing M18 tank destroyers which had been returned to Buick, in the USA, for rebuild.

Modest numbers of the M39 were delivered to Europe during the closing stages of WWII and were assigned to Tank Destroyer units replacing the Half Track. The Majority produced were later used in the Korean War.

Imported from USA in 2015 where it had been a "gate guardian" at a military museum. The M39 has since undergone extensive restoration over a period of 3 years, including the replacement of the engine (C4 Commercial, Radial - 8 cylinder) with NOS unit and a new transmission and final drive unit by the current owners.

Foreign Government Owned Property

M18 Tank Destroyer: This vehicle was imported into Brooklyn NY in 01/1988 from the former Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia as a "gift" to the MMSNE. It is unknown if there was a bill of sale from Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia to the MMSNE, this vehicle has a complete and operational 76mm main gun, which would be permitted as a Temporary Import of Defense Articles managed by the U.S. Department of State. If this is true, then it calls into question who actually owns the $400,000 vehicle. It is unknown if the 76mm main gun is a register NFA Destructive Device. This vehicle was moved to the MOAA in 2018 but the MOAA does not actually own anything in their collection per the MOAA's IRS Form 990. The MMSNE, EIN 06-1145630, is still an active non-profit, their last known tax filing was 2021, however it is no longer an active organization with board members and a museum located in Connecticut.

Tank bound for Danbury museum

BROOKLYN, N.Y. — More than 40 years after it left home to do battle in Europe, a World War II M-18 tank destroyer touched American ground yesterday, destined to become an exhibit in the forthcoming Military Museum of Southern Connecticut in Danbury.

"I'll tell you, it's great seeing a piece of history coming home," said Brian Banks of New Fairfield, a museum member who watched the vehicle being unloaded from a freighter.

The museum is scheduled to open this summer on Backus Avenue in Danbury, next to the Danbury Fair Mall.

The Army tank destroyer, an armored vehicle designed expressly to attack Nazi Panzer tanks, returned to New York from Yugoslavia, where it apparently has been since the early 1930s, according to Col. E. Keough of the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey. Keough is a retired Naval officer and a tank buff, he said.

The vehicle, donated to museum officials by the Yugoslavian govtern able to trace the tank destroyer's history, its return to Brooklyn may represent a full circle.

During World War II, the Brooklyn waterfront just south of Flat Hook Terminal, where the tank was delivered yesterday, was the site of the Navy's Port of Embarkation. Most of the munitions shipped to Europe during the war left from there, Keough said.

"It's a very good possibility that that tank went out from down here," he said.

The vehicle was one of 2,387 built by the Buick Division of General Motors Corp. between 1941 and 1945. Nicknamed "Hellcat," it was designed to travel at speeds over 50 mph and was the fastest trucked combat vehicle in any army at the time.

Museum officials speculate that it is the only tank destroyer used in battle to return to the United States. Two other M-18 tank de-

The applicable demilitarization procedures are to be accomplished before the property is released to the donee and are to be certified by the demilitarization provider. This Conditional Deed of Gift is null and void if EITHER TACOM does not receive the written certification of demilitarization wherein demilitarization was provided or inspected by an authorized Department of Defense representative OR the proper demilitarization is not accomplished according to the procedures for that specific vehicle.

(2) Donee agrees that the donated vehicles shall not be restored to running condition, nor shall the donated vehicles be driven under any circumstances. If, at any time, the donated property is no longer used for display or educational purposes, or if the donee no longer wishes to keep the donated property, written notice shall be given to the donor and title to the donated property shall at the option of the donor, revert to and vest in the donor who shall be entitled to immediate repossession of the donated property.

Dear Ms. Kelly:

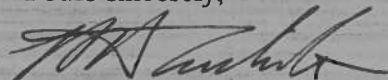

This follows our conversation recently on the M551 Sheridan. Enclosed herewith are copies of what "track record" we have for this acquisition. For some time we had been interested in acquiring a Sheridan, if one was available. Over the years we have made many trips to Aberdeen, and established a good rapport with members of the Ordnance Museum, CSTA (as it was or is known), and related agencies. They have always recognized us as a dedicated, legitimate organization, and have been willing to let us know when items we seek become excess to the Army's needs, or available via the Army's museum system.

And so it was that our president, John Valluzzo, got word of the availability of this Sheridan, and we began actively working to get it, back in 1992. Underneath is a copy of my internal memorandum of December 23, 1992, with notations as to follow-up telephone calls in March and April of 1993. Also enclosed is a copy of our letter to TACOM (as your command was then designated) pursuing our request. And finally you will find a copy of the shipping document that we got from the carrier, which includes the Sheridan as well as other items.

That's all we have on this, except for noting that Mr. James Speraw of the Center of Military History conducted an on-site audit a year or so ago and found everything to be in order. We probably should have some sort of official transfer certificate, but we can't seem to find it - our files have not yet been reorganized since the move last year, so if you can issue us one, and "close the loop", that would be great.

Thanks for thinking of us, and for helping us to keep on the right track. Enclosed also is an article appearing in last Sunday's Danbury News-Times, which you might share with Mr. Wolverton.

Yours sincerely,

Philip A. Cocchiola
